Overall:

- A family could find this page useful, but a kid could be interested in it too

- Soft colors

- Simplistic, nothing too complicated

- Not too much text in one area to avoid

- Open to your own interpretation: topic is pretty surface level and less curated towards an incredibly specific audience (ie like a TV show or book or celebrity)

First page vs second page difference:

- First page can be more image focused, drawing people's attention

- Second page is more informational and logistical

- Could also combine them to be more concise!

Third page:

- Timeline could be cool? Or just a blurb

Fourth and fifth pages:

- can utilize a rating scale like the American Kennel Club website that rates the different breed characteristics on a 5 star scale :

  https://www.akc.org/dog-breeds/cavalier-king-charles-spaniel/

- Physical traits can include: its distinction with other spaniels, body type, size, color, etc.

Sixth page:

- Cover basics of health problems (maybe pick 3 to elaborate on, but you can mention all of the ones listed on wikipedia)
